

Corporate Members Code of Conduct

Adopted by NASCA Executive Committee January 2019

The following guidelines and policies for participation in NASCA's corporate partner membership are designed to create the ideal networking experience for private sector participants.

Corporate membership and all sponsorship offerings are designed solely to further the mission of NASCA which is to help state chief administrators and their teams strategically transform state government operations through the power of shared knowledge and thought leadership.

NASCA serves as a conduit to provide meaningful interaction between state Chief Administrators, their senior staff, and members of the private sector. Corporate partners and state members establish relationships to share information and best practices, as well as discuss industry trends, hurdles, and opportunities. Corporate partners learn of state needs and how they can best work together to fulfill them.

To facilitate this relationship, corporate partners are invited to actively participate in NASCA events, meetings, and committee activities. Corporate partners are represented on the NASCA Executive Committee by the Corporate Council Co-Chairs, and desired committee participation is outlined in each committee charter. Sponsorship opportunities are offered exclusively to all corporate partners. State members understand that the challenges they face are too numerous and complex to solve alone and look to partner with private sector vendors to help solve those challenges.

WHO SHOULD JOIN?

Memberships are held in the name of the company.

- Membership Contact: The corporate membership primary contact is the liaison between NASCA and your company. NASCA staff will communicate with you regarding your membership questions, conference information and opportunities, annual dues, company listings, etc.
- Company Profile Contact: The primary company representative listed for this role in the membership should have U.S.-wide responsibility for relationship management and business development in the state government channel for the company. He/she is the contact posted for the company's listings in the annual membership directory and for the online corporate profile, as well as the primary contact for representation on the NASCA Corporate Council. This corporate contact is responsible and will be held accountable for company adherence to the NASCA Corporate Code of Conduct.
- Other Company Individuals: Corporate members are welcome to add as many company employees as they wish if they have a company email address.

CONFERENCE PARTICIPATION AND SPONSORSHIP

NASCA conferences provide excellent opportunities for corporate-to-state member networking as well as corporate-to-corporate collaboration. Please support the inclusion and participation of all registered members at all NASCA sponsored program sessions (i.e., roundtables, lunch, and breakout sessions). Be selective about who you send to the conferences. NASCA conferences are designed to facilitate networking and thought leadership. Corporate partners who use the opportunity to build relationships with state members and fellow corporate members (not close sales) find the most benefit from their NASCA membership.

- To keep attendance ratios desirable for corporate partners and state members, you must be a corporate member in good standing to sponsor a NASCA event. Sponsorships are sold on a first-come, first-serve basis via an online system. Splitting or dividing a sponsorship is not permitted.
- NASCA corporate members, partner entities, conference sponsors, and attendees are expressly prohibited from holding events or hosted meetings that run concurrently with NASCA conference sessions, meetings, meals, receptions, or any other conference-related events. Unless facilitated by NASCA, there must be a thirty-minute buffer from the conclusion of our event and the start time of your hosted meeting or meal invitation. All external corporate meetings must be mindful of venue rules such as noise levels, room occupancy limits, and hotel food/beverage policies. Corporate members should be extremely mindful of the expectation for the highest level of professional behavior and the state ethics laws that guide the actions of state members. You must alert the NASCA Executive Director of any scheduled event(s) at least 14 days in advance of the start of the conference.
- No promotional material or trinkets may be broadly distributed at NASCA conferences. Corporate partners may provide educational materials in a targeted capacity with permission from the NASCA Executive Director. However, NASCA will not allow sponsor advertisements or other materials that criticize other corporate members or state members.
- Gifts or other amenities may not be given to any public sector attendee or sent to their hotel room.

- Corporate members are limited to attendance guidelines determined at each conference. Corporate members are not permitted to bring non-member guests to the conference events or participate in badge share.
- NASCA conferences intentionally do not have trade show or exhibit space for corporate sponsors. Instead, we invite corporate members to work side-by-side with their government partners and discuss issues and trends in state government.
- Conference rosters are not to be harvested, sold to others, incorporated into any type of database, used to generate mailing lists, or employed for any promotional purpose. To maintain membership equity, we ask all members to be thoughtful, respectful, and cautious when sending emails, posting information to the all-member forum, and sending mailings to fellow NASCA members. NASCA asks corporate partners to focus communication on sharing educational materials and to use the opportunities available through your NASCA corporate partner benefits and NASCA publications to share subject matter expertise and company profile information.
- For organizations that are umbrella/parent companies, subsidiaries may be covered under the membership of the umbrella group. However, membership does not permit cobranding/co-sponsoring of these companies on the NASCA website or sponsorship materials.
- Suitcasing at a NASCA event or conference is defined as any activity by an individual who is not a sponsoring corporate partner where the activity is designed to solicit or sell products or services to other sponsors or attendees. Suitcasing can occur by non-registrants and those who are registered as guest speakers or strategic partners, or by parties misrepresenting their business or entity relationship. NASCA expressly prohibits solicitations from companies or organizations who are not Corporate Partners in good standing that have engaged in a sponsorship. Suitcasing violations are not limited to only conference or event venues. Suitcasing activity is also prohibited at hotel guest rooms or hospitality suites, restaurant, or any other public place of assembly done in relative proximity to NASCA's events. Violators will be asked to leave immediately. Additional penalties may be applied at the discretion of the NASCA Executive Committee.
